The purpose of this course is to reach some understanding of the various forces that shaped the course of Russian history in the nineteenth century -- from Napoleon's invasion of Russia in 1812, to the abdication of Tsar Nicholas II in 1917. It is a course that will endeavor to focus on the social and intellectual aspects of Russian history and the people’s response to “official policies.”

Particularly because primary and secondary materials on Russian history in English are either not available at all locally, or are widely scattered about or are very limited, student success in this course will depend very much on his/her active participation when considering the various issues confronting Russia during this period. This way, and only in this way, can one hope to gain an understanding of -- and perhaps even an appreciation for -- nineteenth-century Russian history.

No claim to completeness is being made and rather than proceeding strictly in a chronological fashion, the focus will be on selected major events. The lectures will concentrate on specific subjects and may range beyond the material covered in the textbook. Therefore, regular attendance is of importance -- despite the early hour.

The examinations will include questions drawn from assigned readings, lectures, and in-class discussions.

CONCLUSION.
TERM PAPERS:

Choose one of the following topics to write on. Essays should be 6000 words in length (max.), legible, and double-spaced. It also should have a title page. For proper footnoting and other technical aspects of essay writing, consult the LANGARA STYLE SHEET.

Your paper MUST include a bibliography of all the sources that you have consulted for its preparation. REMEMBER: a term paper requires critical analysis of your subject -- a reading and weighing of points of view advanced by a number of experts in your chosen subject area. A laundry list of facts and generalizations or a mere recitation of events does not meet the requirement of critical analysis.

Your paper will comprise 40% of your final mark and is due on Friday, February 16, 2007. LATE PAPERS WILL BE PENALIZED 10% per day, including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

1. ALEXANDER VS. NAPOLEON.
2. THE CONCERT OF EUROPE.
3. THE DECEMBRIST MOVEMENT.
4. THE CRIMEAN WAR.
5. RUSSIA’S PEASANTRY.
6. RUSSIA’S REVOLUTIONARY INTELLIGENTSIA.
7. POPULISM IN RUSSIA.
8. THE RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR.
9. BLOODY SUNDAY.
10. RUSSIAN ART & ARTISTS.
11. RUSSIA & THE GREAT WAR.
